

Headline	A SPACE to call home
MediaTitle	New Straits Times
Date	05 Sep 2012	Color	Full Color
Section	Local News	Circulation	136,530
Page No	6	Readership	330,000
Language	English	ArticleSize	870 cm ²
Journalist	N/A	AdValue	RM 28,275
Frequency	Daily	PR Value	RM 84,824

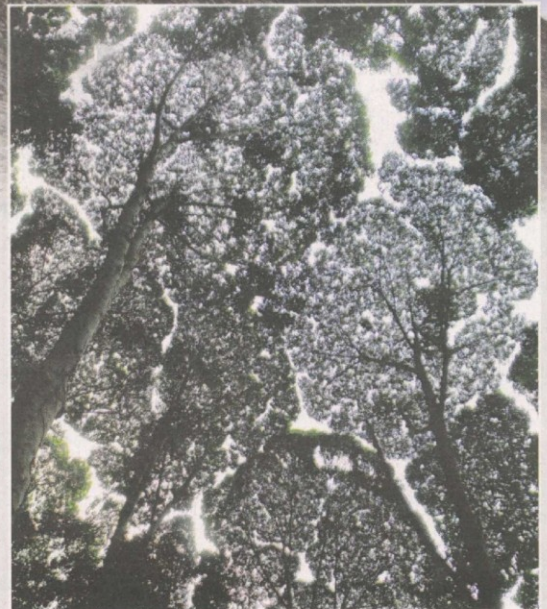

Malaysian. Together.

In collaboration with Sime Darby Developing Sustainable Futures

A SPACE to call home

Aug 30, 2011:
At the majestic Gunung Kinabalu in Sabah, St John's Peak welcomes visitors with its "Gorilla face".
- Pic by ROY GOH

This is our land. The natural environment, filled with the robust symbols that everyone recognizes as, very simply, home. The majestic grandeur of Gunung Kinabalu, the still undetermined wealth of our rich rainforests, magical mangroves, gigantic caves, sandy white beaches and the spectacular vistas offered by the South China Sea. Each of these and more are our collective assets, accessible to everyone, and owned by all. Sometimes it pays to sit back and appreciate our existence here. It is this land, with all its verdant hallmarks and our sustainable management of it, that gives us the physical space to be a nation.

Jan 25, 2011: In the Forest Research Institute of Malaysia, the gaping crowns of towering Kapur trees form beautiful patterns against the sky.
- Pic by MUSTAFFA KAMAL

July 11, 2012: The pristine sandy beaches of Talang Satang Island is among the natural treasures of Lundu District, Sarawak. - Pic by DENNIS WONG

June 17, 1994: Kota Gelanggi Cave near Jerantut, Pahang has limestone formations that are at once delightful and scientifically fascinating.

June 26, 2012:
A five-petalled Rafflesia at the Royal Belum State Park, Cerik, Perak.
- Pic by DANIAL SAAD

