Suggest Developers To Build Green Housing

Headline
Suggest Developers To Build Green Housing
MediaTitle
China Press
Date
04 May 2012
Section
Central
Page No
C4
Language
Chinese Journalist
N/A
Frequency
Daily

(Shanghai Daily) Lu Xiangfu, the Shanghai Development Bank, called for the construction of green housing. Developing green housing is not only a strategic and practical way to improve the environment, but it is also a necessary measure to improve the living environment.

Lu Xiangfu said, "In today's urban development, the construction of green housing is not only a strategic and practical way to improve the environment, but it is also a necessary measure to improve the living environment."

The construction of green housing is a key to improving the environment. It is crucial to develop green housing and promote the construction of green infrastructure. The construction of green housing and green infrastructure is not only a strategic and practical way to improve the environment, but it is also a necessary measure to improve the living environment.

A good environment is the foundation of a good life. It is crucial to develop green housing and promote the construction of green infrastructure. The construction of green housing and green infrastructure is not only a strategic and practical way to improve the environment, but it is also a necessary measure to improve the living environment.

Lu Xiangfu said, "In today's urban development, the construction of green housing is not only a strategic and practical way to improve the environment, but it is also a necessary measure to improve the living environment."

The construction of green housing is a key to improving the environment. It is crucial to develop green housing and promote the construction of green infrastructure. The construction of green housing and green infrastructure is not only a strategic and practical way to improve the environment, but it is also a necessary measure to improve the living environment.

Lu Xiangfu said, "In today's urban development, the construction of green housing is not only a strategic and practical way to improve the environment, but it is also a necessary measure to improve the living environment."

The construction of green housing is a key to improving the environment. It is crucial to develop green housing and promote the construction of green infrastructure. The construction of green housing and green infrastructure is not only a strategic and practical way to improve the environment, but it is also a necessary measure to improve the living environment.